2. Reasons for the revision

In the pharmaceutical wholesale business, Japan's medical expense curbing policy led to drug price revision in April 2016, which lowered drug price standards by 7.8%. Sales of long-listed drugs continued its previous decline due to category changes. In the medical payment revisions in April 2016 as well, further measures for promoting use of generic drugs were proposed, and declines in sales of long-listed drugs are persistent during the fiscal year under review. Furthermore, the market scale for hepatitis C medication, which demonstrated explosive sales during the previous fiscal year, contracted earlier than the Company's forecast.

As a result, net sales are expected to fall below previously announced forecasts. In line with this, operating income, ordinary income and net income attributable to owners of parent are also expected to fall below previously announced forecasts. Therefore, the consolidated earnings forecast has been revised as shown above.

Note: The above earnings forecasts are compiled based on materials available at the time of announcement. Actual results may differ from forecasts due to various factors.
